

Big Brother

Description

Sons are a heritage from the LORD, children a reward from him. (Psalm 127:3)

My sweet little boy is going to be 2 years old on Saturday, May 16th. I thought a perfect way to celebrate his two years of life is to write about him and the many lessons that God has taught me through him. So this week I will be focusing on my son Zion and the beautiful gift he has been to me.

Before I continue, I thought it's only fitting to also announce that we are expecting a little brother for Zion in June.

It continues to amaze me that God has entrusted me with this beautiful boy. And now God is entrusting me with one more. I pray every day that I can raise my boys to love Jesus. I want them to both follow God with all their hearts. I want them to have a passion for Jesus that far surpasses my passion. I want them to be led by the Holy Spirit, sensitive to God's leading so much more so than I have been in my life. I want them to be lovers of God's Word. I pray they will be courageous, that they will stand up for God, that they will fight for freedom, that they will be a joy to this world, and that I can raise them to be men after God's own heart.

From the beginning, I have treated my son like the future man God intends him to be. I'm not raising a baby. I'm raising a future man, I'm raising a future husband, a future father, a future leader, and a Kingdom impacter. I keep this in mind every day because my little boy will one day not be a little boy any more. Sure, I still enjoy every minute of his growing years. I get down on the floor often, I laugh with him, we cuddle on the couch, and we enjoy many moments together. These and many other moments are the joys I get to experience as a mother. There truly has been no greater joy for me than loving my sweet little boy.

Thank you God for my incredible son! I love him so much and I'm so blessed that You have entrusted him to me. I pray that I can daily raise him to love you with all his heart, soul, and strength. Please give me wisdom on how best to teach Zion about You. May I teach him how to have a heart for You, how to live for you, and how to impact eternity for you! Lord, please continue to guide me so that I can raise a man who greatly impacts your Kingdom!

Offering my sons to you Lord,

Category

1. Mommy Moments

Tags

1. Gabriel
2. Mom
3. Mommy
4. Zion

Date Created

May 11, 2015

Author

thepricelessjourney

default watermark